Teacher Leadership in Action™

Making Instructional Change Happen

"Thank you very much for the wonderful two days! I really enjoyed the workshop and the expertise and enthusiasm you have."

--Fairport Central Schools

Instructional leadership must be shared. Teacher leaders are essential because the demands for school improvement exceed the capacity of administration alone.

Instructional knowledge does not mean that instructional change will occur. Teacher leaders will be provided with a variety of resources including the Excellence for Learning Leadership Profile and Teacher Leadership in Action Practices Inventory, self-scoring instruments to assist them with their learning and development.

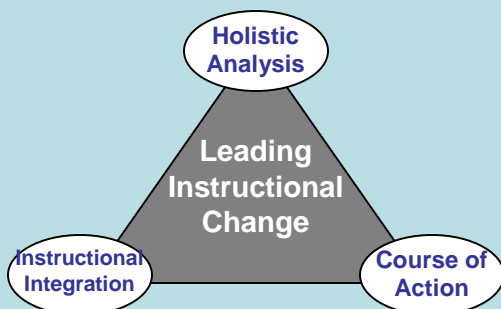

Two-day Conference

"The joint presentation model is powerful."

--St. John Fisher College Ed.D. Program

Following this conference teacher leaders will have the knowledge, skills and strategies needed to:

- Build individual teacher commitment and mobilize teams into action
- Recognize effective teaching practice and use assessment data to change instructional methods where students are not succeeding
- Help teachers escape their instructional islands by working and learning in each others classrooms
- Make desired instructional change

Lock-in dates for delivery of this workshop at your district or register now for an open session, available seats are filling fast. For additional information, contact us at 585.426.7520 or e-mail rpeter@insights2improvement.com. Team tuition discounts are available.
